THE FRENCH-MAIL PAPERS.

It is not often that we have so interesting a batch of papers to work upon as we are favoured with to-day. First and foremost comes what we may characterise as a literary production almost unique in its way, being Eminence Cardinal Manning, in the Conpleasure and surprise. Such opinions from are, to say the least, unexpected. The broadly Christian and catholic spirit which characterises them is, we take it, seldom found in the writings of Romish authors. ing in the night." He does not believe that the electric light will at all supersede gas, though it will have a great future of its own. He does not think that the electric railways will, for a very great future of its own, -which he expects, before long be using a gunpowder which it will not be necessary to keep dry, but which will be just as useful, -and therefore, we suppose, just as dangerous, -when it is wet, -a prospect which lends rather a grim significance to the hackneyed quotation from Longfellow with which Dr. Siemens concluded his otherwise admirable address :-

"Let us, then, be up and doing, With a heart for any fate; Still achieving, still pursuing,

Learn to labour, and to wait." If even wet gunpowder is to be as dangerous as dry, and school-boys get hold of it, we shall indeed need "a heart for any fate," and shall not have much chance of obeying the remainder of Longfellow's exhortation. A novel entitled 'One of "Us" is reviewed in a style almost as enthusiastic as 'Vice Versâ.' It is a sort of extravaganza in prose, and is said to be thoroughly unique. The Saturday has a capital article descriptive of the 'Siege of Cairo in 1801,' which appeals strongly to our interest just now and an amusing little paper headed 'Cetewayo at the Stake,' in which the attempted interview of the Temperance League is very happily taken off. Cetewayo certainly seems to have had the best of it there :-On the first occasion they did not even see Cetewayo, and they were quizzed by Mr. Fyoney.
